Are hemorrhoids getting the best of you and your mood? Take many baths through out the day, if you can. Do not add anything to the baths. Make sure they are not too hot! Don't worry; you can not take way too many baths! The water should be just about two or three inches high. Soak your bottom for at least 10 minutes at the same time. Have a evening off of work to do this; if you have to, it is well worth the effort!

Before any form of treatment may be employed, it is still best to be checked by a doctor first. While piles are considered to be very common and also can be benign, they also pose certain symptoms that are similar to other significant health conditions such as anal fissures, fistulas, abscesses and rectal cancer. It is essential to have a physician to look at you first so that these conditions may be ruled out and then after that, you may decide to cure hemorrhoids naturally. One of the common causes of hemorrhoids is constipation.

Constipation Brings about Too Much Straining of the Bowels, Resulting to Hemorrhoids

To cure constipation, beverage dandelion tea during the morning hours and throughout the afternoon. Dandelion is an all-natural laxative that aids in the relief of constipation. This is done by getting rid of the need for straining during defecating that leads to the formation of hemorrhoids. High blood pressure is yet another common cause of piles or hemorrhoids. To treat high blood pressure, dandelion are often used.

- Dandelion also acts as a natural diuretic that aids in the retention of liquid, a common factor that influences high blood pressure.
- To maintain total digestive health, add dandelion leaves in order to your meals.
- Dandelion leaves may either be consumed raw or cooked.
- A convenient method to incorporate them into your meals is to chop them up and add them to a vegetable soup.
- Cure hemorrhoids by creating a dandelion tonic wine.
- This can be made by soaking about a cup of dandelion flowers in white wine for about 2 weeks in an airtight container.
- Strain the dandelions and then with sugar, sweeten the concoction according to taste.
- You can also use honey as an alternative.
- The dandelion tonic wine is best served chilled.
- To counteract the bitter taste of the dandelion, work with a white wine with a citrus flavor.
